ABOUT TNNLU's ADR COMMITTEE

The Alternative Dispute Resolution Committee at Tamil Nadu National Law University was established in the year 2018 to serve as a comprehensive platform to introduce law students to the dynamic world of Alternative Dispute Resolution. Our commitment is rooted in preparing law students for the evolving landscape of dispute resolution, where ADR methods are gaining prominence. The ADRC has successfully conducted workshops, intra university ADR competitions, along with 5 editions of its flagship event, the TNNLU National Med-Arb Competition (NMAC).

Our Aim

In a world where traditional dispute resolution mechanisms often falter, we believe in the transformative potential of ADR. The ADRC's mission is to expose and equip budding legal minds with the skills and knowledge necessary to engage in various ADR methods. We aspire to inculcate in our student community the ability to reshape the way disputes are resolved.

ABOUT CENTRE FOR ADR

Recognizing the significance of the Alternative Dispute Resolution Mechanisms, TNNLU places great importance on understanding ADR mechanisms and their principles. With the provision of clinical and specialized courses in the field, Intra-University competitions, a centre dedicated to research in ADR mechanisms and dedicated participation in external competitions, TNNLU has a bustling ADR culture.

ABOUT TNNLU'S NATIONAL MED-ARB COMPETITION

Tamil Nadu National Law University stands at the forefront of legal education in India, hosting the unique National Med-Arb Competition, a pioneering initiative in the country's academic landscape. TNNLU has carved a distinctive niche by being the first law university to introduce and organize such an innovative event, exemplifying a commitment to progressive legal education.

The competition introduces a novel two-step dispute resolution process, seamlessly incorporating mediation and arbitration. Participants initially engage in mediation to resolve disputes amicably. Unresolved issues automatically transition to arbitration, where an arbitrator delivers a binding decision, ensuring a comprehensive resolution.

An exceptional feature of the competition is the evaluation of arbitral award writing, making TNNLU the first university in India to emphasize this critical skill. This innovative element aligns with TNNLU's broader mission of providing students with a well-rounded and practical legal education that extends beyond conventional boundaries.

The National Med-Arb Competition serves as a dynamic platform for law students nationwide to showcase proficiency in both mediation and arbitration. Over the past five years, the competition has provided students with a rich and enriching experience, allowing them to refine skills and deepen their understanding of dispute resolution mechanisms outside the traditional courtroom setting. In the previous editions, the themes of the NMAC have varied from medical negligence, insurance, corporate and contractual dispute.

With anticipation for spirited participation from 20 distinguished law schools across the nation, this year's competition is poised to continue its tradition of excellence, fostering an environment where students engage with the intricacies of mediation, arbitration, and the craft of arbitral awards. TNNLU remains dedicated to shaping the legal professionals of tomorrow through innovative educational initiatives.
